

Communication and Control through Words and Power

Author: Reji M. Issac

Abstract:

Cognition and Communication are two processes that are interrelated through the sciences Noology and Electronics. Cybernetics is the art and science of understanding, which connects these two sciences together. In an age where human rights are inclusive of transformation of a human as a Cyborg, man and machine are closely working together, where machine intelligence means connecting machines with Noosphere. As we all know the basic difference between human beings and animals are with respect to thinking, where humans are more endowed with divine qualities and powers, which are controlled through the Words. Humans are also involved in the creation of the Words through their creative abilities. This paper aims to describe an idea about the communication and control through an invisible media known as Noosphere, where exchange of Words, generation of Words, rearrangement of Words, elimination of Words and modification of Words are done in the Heart and we inform the world about the invention of the Word. We use a methodology of analogous comparison with the communication through the Electromagnetic waves over a perfect conductor, where the media is a perfect conductor of words known as Holy Spirit. It also uses an analogy with electrons. This paper can be considered as a key paper related with Control, Cybernetics, Noology and Electronics, which gives the ultimate in all communication technologies and the ultimate status of Noosphere prophesied by intellectuals, through which Cybernetics can be raised to its original thought as the Science of Government, without any fear about unscrupulous Governments. This paper discusses how power is controlled through words and explains the weirdness in Control, Electronics, Computer Communications, and the Cyberspace communications. The communication system developed through this media can be called as Sky Mail or S-MAIL.
